What You Missed In September

The theme for our September meeting was "Magic with Items from Work or School".

Watt Hyer took paper clips and placed them one by one into his fist, when he pulled them back out, they were linked together.

Watt did a prediction where he had Lou Dean shake up three invisible coins and eliminate two. The remaining coin and its face had been Watt's prediction Finally, Watt demonstrated "Crazy Man's Handcuffs", both linking and unlinking and some moves from "Band-it".

Bill Baber performed "All Screwed Up", from Doc Eason's Bar Magic. This is a "two in the hand, one in the pocket" routine using three hex nuts and a carriage bolt. Two nuts in the performer's hand are joined magically by one that was in the pocket. One of the nuts becomes a bolt. Then the two nuts become screwed onto the bolt. Last, the assembled unit vanishes as it is passed to a spectator.

Another effect, LINKLIP is an effect by Ken de Courcy in which two paperclips become linked. Two separate large paperclips are placed into a spectator's hand and become linked. They are held up to emphasize their status and then replaced into the spectator's hand. When the spectator's hand is close and opened, three small paperclips have joined the large ones. With Barry Mills assisting, Bill uses the story line of Mr. Blue meeting Miss Pink out clubbing and getting together. They then have babies!

Mike Kinnaird performed an incredible coin vanish, Geoff William's "The Miracle Coin Vanish". He takes a coin and slowly rubs it on his pant leg as he explains how a bad practice makes money go away. The coin gradually vanishes in plain view.

With Zack Gartrell nothing is as it seems. His bear turns into a yo-yo, he performed a quick change, turned black coffee into coffee with cream, and produced a cup of water from an empty bag that had been turned upside down!

Harry Gallant first did another version of the invisible coin prediction with Barry Mills. Harry also performed a Copperfield effect using a papermate pen where he predicts one of the numbers on the pen that Bill Baber has selected and pretended to write on his hand.

Lou Dean performed "Big Reaction" with Larry Rohr, Andrew Clarke and Joe Duck. The deck was passed from one person to another to come up with a randomly selected card. After explaining that he wanted to be "booed" if he could not find the card and looking for a "big reaction" if he could, he revealed all of the cards that had "boo" on the back of them with the exception of the selected card. That one had "applaud" on the back of it. He got his "big reaction".
